Re: Social Science Book

Dear President Obama,

I wrote a book on society in an effort to ease the psychosis humanity is plagued by. As an uncensored discussion on fractured psychologies, failed ideas and uncertainty of ethical practices endemic in all societies, I hope the work can serve as an initiator of more rational, humane views for governance, in lieu of the furtherance of reactive reasoning obstructing their emergence in that domain.

As a writer and teacher whose purpose is to serve humanity towards that rational end, I offer these commentaries to the leadership of the nation with an optimistic belief that they will be eventually read, archived and referred to - and not languish in censored obscurity - or - pitched-out by habitual indifference. Though I have faith the manuscript will not be entirely rejected or misunderstood by ordained power, perhaps it is a necessary step to suffer towards a more enlightened maturity of patience and acceptance that humans struggle with, yet are capable of.

As President anointed with tremendous responsibilities, I don't know if you will ever read this letter, let alone this book; yet I feel duty-bound to send this signed copy to you as a contribution to any discussion within your advisory councils on improving the human condition.

Sincerely,

Dr. Hubert Kleinpeter
