

PRIVACY AND USE POLICY

Privacy: The Mantis Institute, a Social Science based Development of Education practice, does not collect, or solicit emails or personal information from site visitors. Only anonymous ISP information is recorded in the statistical usage logs that are periodically and permanently deleted.

The Mantis Institute utilizes two third party services: AddToAny, provides share and follow buttons on the index page, but collects no information; and Statcounter usage logs collecting information from IP addresses limited to geographic location; browser type; operating system; and date and time of the visit. For full functionality, the user can unblock these third-party cookies in the browser settings.

Use: Visitors can download complementary open-source E-Books made available for public or private non-commercial use. Hardcover books can be purchased for private or public consumption. All materials, inclusive of videos and electronic and paperback books are the intellectual, copyrighted property of the Mantis Institute, its authors, and artists. Usages are restricted to being cited as a research source in classrooms, articles, books, videos, social media platforms, radio or any mode of information or discussion. Data scraping is permitted solely for indexing purposes spreading information but not for commercial use such as selling copyrighted “open source” E-Books.

If materials of the Mantis Institute, authors or artists are referred to in publications, social-media such as podcast platforms, and indexing of publications on websites please notify the Mantis Institute and provide a copy of the publication and links to social-media, podcast, and website platforms for inclusion in [Mantis] publication and video libraries.